Memorandum of Understanding between
Rural Development
and the
Office of Minority Business Enterprise

I. Background

The Rural Development Business and Industrial loan program was established under the Rural Development Act of 1972. Its purpose is to improve the quality of rural life and upgrade economic development in rural areas. The B&I program has targeted a percentage of its total loan guarantee authority for rural minority loan applicants. Rural Development administers the B&I program through its State, District and County Offices. Priority is given to applications for projects in open country and rural communities and towns of 25,000 and smaller.

The Office of Minority Business Enterprise (OMBE), an agency of the Department of Commerce and established by Executive Order in 1969, promotes minority business enterprise growth through (1) direct assistance to minority businesses; (2) coordination of Federal efforts in support of minority businesses; (3) encouragement of private sector support for minority businesses. OMBE provides direct business management and technical assistance through 225 community-based nonprofit business development organizations and construction contractor assistance centers. OMBE's six Regional Offices are located in New York, Washington, DC, Atlanta, Chicago, Dallas and San Francisco.

II. Purpose

This joint agreement affirms the mutual desire of the Farmers Home Administration and the Office of Minority Business Enterprise to cooperate in administering their respective policies and procedures to complement the activities of each other in support of minority business enterprise.

III. Agreement

A. Rural Development and OMBE will cooperate in mutual briefings on program aims and in updating and evaluation of this agreement.

B. Rural Development will inform any minority applicants and/or borrowers about assistance available through OMBE funded local business development organizations (BDO) and construction contractor assistance centers (CCAC).

C. OMBE and Rural Development will provide the BDO's and CCAC's with information about the B&I program and will cooperate in conferences, seminars, workshops, and meetings with minority business owners, lenders, community leaders, community organizations, and private sector business organizations.
